Yes. I have never heard of telephone companies objecting to foreign languages, and the FCC certainly doesn't.

Hams must give their call signs in English.

Also, use of _secret_ languages (codes or ciphers) is forbidden, but if you want to speak French or Arabic or Kwakiutl, go right ahead.

The CSCE's are good for a year regardless of how the tests may change.

Is it legal to use foreign language on the air while using autopatch.

I am not quite sure, and dont have the time to look it up in the library.

Thanks,
      Azmi N3ODN

Yup.. I think it is! But if you know the theory and the rules, you should have no problem with question pool changes. After all, it isn't just rote memorization that gets you the license. :)
